Personal Statement

Franklyn Turbak
Department of Computer Science
Wellesley College

DRAFT September 15, 2001DRAFT

I this document, I summarize my achievements and future plans in teaching, research, and service at Wellesley College for my tenure case. The document is organized as follows:

1. Background: Understanding my teaching and research contributions requires some background knowledge of computer science. This section is a brief introduction to key terminology and concepts used in the remainder of the statement.

2. Teaching: Describes my teaching philosophy, summarizes my teaching contributions, and discusses some future plans for teaching.

3. Research: Summarizes my research projects and future research plans. Unlike my Aug. 1 Research Summary, which was targeted at external reviewers who are experts in the programming language field, this section is targeted at a general audience. In this section, I also discuss the evaluation of computer science research — in particular, the relative importance of conference papers vs. archival journal publications.

4. Service: Summarizes my service contributions to Wellesley College and the Wellesley College Computer Science Department.

1 Background

1.1 Programming and Programming Languages

Here's a link – does it work?

1.2 Interpreters and Compilers

1.3 Program Transformation and Analysis

2 Teaching

2.1 Teaching Philosophy

2.2 Teaching Contributions

2.3 Future Teaching Plans

3 Research

3.1 Research Summary

3.2 Future Research Plans

3.3 Student Research

3.4 Evaluating Computer Science Research

4 Service

4.1 College Service

4.2 Department Service

4.3 Future Service Plans